I wouldn't necessarily go bigger, depending on the stream. I have found fishing for stocked trout of holdovers which are most streams near the se area will go for bigger nymphs in colder weather. But this doesn't necessarily work on every stream I have found in most cases on streams where they are natives/stream bred smaller you go the bigger fish you will catch and more of them. But this isnt necessarily true for just winter fishing. I tend to do the best fishing when it's snowing or very cold. If you need any help in winter fishing send me a pm
