My lack of ability to catch a fish on a fly rod is only surpassed by my sucktitude with casting. I need more time and practice, anyway. Went out on SRC yesterday up by the Eckert Bridge beneath the Mill. Was fishing deeper pools didnt see any fish or feel any bites. Thats fine was enjoying the solitude and trying not to get discouraged after loosing a bunch of flies. So about an hour into fishing a man with his 2 children came off one of the hiking trails about 30 feet upstream from me and began skipping and throwing rocks into the water. OK not really a big deal so I moved upstream about 50 yards away from them to find another spot. About 10 minutes into fishing that spot they showed up again about 30 feet upstream and began the same rock throwing thing. Seriously? Moved again and same thing happened WOW. Ruined my day so I went home
