
Subject: : Print, Video, Audio Discussions

Topic: : Fly Fishing Book Suggestions

Re: Fly Fishing Book Suggestions

Author: : dc410

Date: : 2012/12/2 19:46:43

URL:

Last May I stopped by the Palisades section of the Tully to mainly take some photos of the stream. I took my flyrod along (just in case). I managed to get into one of those "chunky" Tully rainbows which I also took a snapshot of and I always liked the way the picture turned out so I attached it to this post. I caught the nice bow on a zebra midge dropped off the bend of a size 18 Griffiths Gnat tied with oversize hackle (I tie them with oversize hackle so I can see them better and use them as an indicator). This is one of my most productive Tully techniques that I use. While I was taking photos I met this really nice gentleman casting a wispy old bamboo rod. He asked me if I would take a few photots of him fishing and email them to him, which I gladly did. We got into a real great conversation about life in general and flyfishing. While we were talking he referred me to a book written by Henry Winkler (yeah, "The Fonz"). The book is entitled "I've Never Met an Idiot on the River", reflections on family, photography, and fly-fishing. Winkler is passionate about his fly fishing. So if you like photography, fly fishing and reading a book about a guy who generally leads a very fast paced lifestyle but uses his annual fishing trips to Montana fly fishing to come back to realty and experience what life is really all about you may enjoy this book. It surely was not exactly what I was expecting, but it is a very quick read and I really did enjoy it.

Attach file:

 15 inch bow palidades.jpg (19.94 KB)

