I've been putting a fair amount of time in on the stream and can attest to the fact that the fingerlings have moved around quite a bit since they were stocked...

ElonDO - at that size, the brown would have been a "wild" or streambread brown. The rainbows sound as if they were the stocked fingerlings. All the ones I've been catching have clipped adipose fins which is the telltale sign. I have caught small "wild" bows in the Donegal before however.
