Swattie, nothing's changed in that regard.

Bottom line: The final test is still the courts.

I agree that that is the case, in regard to fishing and other recreational uses on the streams.

And I think that is also true in regard to the gas drilling situation.

The commonwealth of PA is simply making ASSERTIONS that they hold these rights. It will be up to the courts to decide whether the law supports their assertions. The gas companies, and possible landowners, are likely to challenge it.
