This happened to me this past year. It was a hot day in July, and the action on Fishing Creek, Clinton Co. was slow. A buddy and i split at a fork hoping to meet where we thought the creek would rejoin. On my side there was another split. The smaller one was a mountain stream. I decided to walk this one and to my surprize it was packed with 8 inch browns, and probably held brookies up farther. but not to loose my friend I decided to walk back. my guess is that everybody takes the side of the stream that he took because my side got shallow and the brush formed a canopy over the water. Hopefully i can find this sport next year, i would like to fish the mountain stream.
