What I notice with the bucktail is depending on what taper you tie the bucktail in at, it can give you some neat profiles and action in the water. I dont think there is a say all be all fly. I've seen some beat up flies take a musky vs a brand new fly right off the vise. I like all the tyes you guys have up there. The cool part about this type of tying is you can experiment with a bunch of different materials and color combo's. Just see what will work and what wont. Thats whats fun about this. What works for one person might not work for another.
