I've had my wife - who is a seamstress - repair my current vest, which is about 6-7 years old. No holes or tears in it - just a few of the zippers broke, and she replaced them. But it does have a few stains on it, and she keeps telling me to get another one also.

Now, I have no problem with wearing something new - and can't really understand why you guys think it makes you look like a novice.

But the old one is so comfortable - like a well worn pair of shoes or gloves. And I know right where everything is in it.

I don't know though. Guess I'll probably be getting a new one soon
