It seems the disease is affecting the Delaware river also, not to mention the f*#@ing cormorants eating all summer. The hatchery at the Salmon River has a video that highlights the issues with these birds up there. We used to only see them around Trenton during the herring run but now they are here all summer eating any fish 8" or less, smallies, herring, shad, "eyes", stripers etc. Some states have started killing eggs and adults to reduce thier population. But at any rate the smallie populaton in the area of bucks county is been rapidly decreasing over the last 5 years.
