

Subject: : Tips and Tricks

Topic: : Swinging for Pennsylvania Steelhead.

Re: Swinging for Pennsylvania Steelhead.

Author: : PhilC

Date: : 2012/12/12 10:36:41

URL:

Quote:

PennKev wrote:

For the Erie tribbs you are doing nothing different than you would for swinging wets and streamers for trout. Having enough water to need or even effectively use switch or spey gear, or any specialized gear for that matter, is rare in PA.

On the other hand I would not want to swing flies without a two-hand rig and appropriate line and sink tips on most Ohio tribbs.

Kev

Agreed...

I've never fished Erie or Ohio but understand the water is smaller...too small to justify a spey/switch rod in most cases.

Just wanted to add that on larger waters, like the SR, if someone says they're "swinging" it typically mean they're breaking out a 2 handed rod...