I just wish that a company would come along and make a product that will last me more than 1-2 years. Until that day comes, when I wear out a product it will be replaced. Instead of prolonging the inevitable, with "band aids". Who ever does the field testing for these big company's is not very good at their job. Any pair of waders and wading boots are the best when you're sitting in a drift boat all day. Let me do the field testing. The big companies will not like the results I come up with, guarantee that.
