Good to hear a report of some fish being caught in the Quittie. The NP in Annville got tore up pretty good during the floods from the tropical cyclones last Fall. I've only fished it once since then and was skunked, although I did have a very nice fish on momentarily before it shook free. That's a definitely a "what could be" type of stream.

Even if it was stocked with Bows by the PFBC in October (as the stocking list indicates), that Brown has been in there at least since this years Spring stockings. Definitely potential here.
