

Subject: : Tips and Tricks

Topic: : Swinging for Pennsylvania Steelhead.

Re: Swinging for Pennsylvania Steelhead.

Author: : CatchingChrome

Date: : 2012/12/15 9:07:10

URL:

I like to swing flies on the salmon, catt and have done it with some success on elk and even 12 mile too. However the smaller streams are when the water is really high and you need a decent space. Would I recommend it on the small tribs no, but I did it for fun when the water was up and there was little or no pressure. As for the catt and Salmon I agree that it is a great way to search big, deep water. Any standard wooly bugger or traditional streamer will work too. So don't worry about tying a bunch of exotics at first. You can even do well swinging big streamers on you local smallmouth river in the summer. It is a blast and gives you some great practice.