That grip is beautiful. Did you stack the bark and glue with titebond? I've seen birch grips, but I don't recall cottonwood. The contrast are really striking and I'll look forward to seeing that on a rod.

If you are still looking for blanks you might try posting on the bamboo section of one of the rod building forms. There are a lot of basement builders out there that would be willing to sell a quality blank for a more reasonable price.
