mine started as a complete joke. then it was to help a buddy learn wordpress. then it was to help document my summer travels. now it's just a place to post hero shots and share my fishing. i have no ads and no plan to make dollars from it. but i have kept it going for almost two years and it does help me pursue this wild passion of ours. it's also been great to have a connection with other anglers across the globe, people i would have never had contact with if it was not for old beertrout.com

I had you on my blogroll but for some reason it stopped picking up your updates and said you didnt have a post for 6 months.
