There's alot blogs I like for various reasons that some of you might have never heard of. Some are so well written, that I think the authors should have a monthly column in every fly fish mag there is. Examples:

<http://www.upthepoudre.com/>

<http://mysteriesinternal.blogspot.com/>

Some are just great fish porn and fly tying eye candy with a few good stories mixed in

<http://anglerschoiceflies.blogspot.com/>

<http://www.yukongoesfishing.com/> (watch the videos..seriously)

Then there are the educational ones for tying

<http://flytyingnewandold.blogspot.com/> (he'll post some random stuff on occasion, but Norman has some amazing posts about fly tying tips)

<http://provenpatterns.blogspot.com/> - Lucas Carroll can straight up tie some flies

<http://hopperjuan.blogspot.com/>

Then there are the ones that are funny, or just have a personal touch. I dig the blogs where you get a sense of the person writing it because they occasionally share pics of their family, kids fishing, etc.
