Cathy, we started up that trail up the mountain, as it's a pretty obvious path, and quickly realized it may not come back down so we back tracked and stuck to the stream. It's all pretty open right now so sometimes the trail along the stream wasn't completely obvious.

I would say that the mountain trail is half way. My advice would be to just keep walking along the stream (not regarding distance, as distance is a bit subjective when you're hiking as you can see from the tread) until you hit the falls. The falls are very obvious (not small). Good luck and have fun.
