

---

Subject: : Fly Fishing Locations

Topic: : Gallatin River

Re: Gallatin River

Author: : Sylvaneous

Date: : 2012/12/24 10:10:08

URL:

What does, like 91 miles on non-stop wild rainbow, road accessable water mean to you? Huh? Neigh Baahd, Laddie! I mean, are you serious? My bud works out of East Slope Anglers in Big Sky. I stayed with him a few times. From there, the Madison is like 1 1/2 hours and the lower Yellowstone around Livingston is about the same. Big humps every day to fish; like if I drove from home to Spring Creek almost and said "Hey this week I'm on a fishing vacation". Try the scattered boulder rock-garden looking spots. Avoid the really deep or flat, fast places that LACK deep cover. Hit any meadow area carefully. Last time I was out there, I landed an honest 20 incher on a sz. 14 caddis at sunset. Not in the madison or yellowstone, but the Gallatin.