

---

Subject: : Fly Fishing Locations

Topic: : little lehigh Dec 9th 2012

Re: little lehigh Dec 9th 2012

Author: : afishinado

Date: : 2012/12/25 8:08:41

URL:

Quote:

Jake41 wrote:

I fished the LL about two weeks ago and I noticed a significant drop in fish numbers. I'm from Jersey so I don't fish the stream a lot, maybe once a month or so, but I have fished it for more than 15 years and I have noticed a steady decline in insect activity and numbers of fish. One time I went up to the upper section on Cherry rd. and saw something that really was disturbing. Corn was planted in a field almost up to the stream bank. there was silt in the stream in all of the soft areas downstream.

This can't be good for the health of the stream. I have stayed downstream in the Heritage section lately. I just think that the overdevelopment has had a negative impact on the stream.

Agreed, the entire stream has gone downhill no doubt, especially the Cherry Rd section - the bottom looks like it's actually "paved!" There's a small Class A section on the LL that I fished not long ago, when looking for better spots to fish, and most of the stream there was in the same shape as the Cherry Rd section. Sad to see.