Nice video. I love Sanibel Island. My parents live nearby and I make a trek down there every year in March. I can't wait to go again!!

I have had decent success there. We rented kayaks one year and cruised in the back bays. I managed to hook into 3 Snook and lost them all because of my light tippet. Found many tailing Reds, but managed to spook them all. They are tough to catch. You need to approach them like a spring creek trout for sure. Accurate casting and patience are key. Also saw a Manatee one year. I have heard that the snook will cruise in close on the beaches in the summer months, but I never had success on the Gulf side of the island in March. Great place.
