The area below Furnace Rd. is "ATW", so chances are if you find fish, they'll be few and far between. I've never fished down that way but can surmise that it gets cleaned up pretty good during "Trout season".

Manada is a neat stream because it does support a small resident population of streambred browns and bows on what is for all intents and purposes, a freestone stream.

And I should have clarified my comment about the buggers better. I've caught fish on buggers in Manada, but they don't seem to produce for me like they do on other streams.
