Thanks for clearing up the bugger comment. I've flyfished for over 18 years but could count on one hand how many times I've used a wooly bugger. I have caught fish on them in the past but have preferred the hares ear and pheasant tails on my home streams and have done very well with them. Having confidence in a fly is almost as important as any other fly characteristic in my opinion.

I will try the wooly buggers again on some other streams in the area to see if I can turn my luck with them.
