

Subject: : Beginner Forum

Topic: : Looking For Help With Fly Identification

Re: Looking For Help With Fly Identification

Author: : SBecker

Date: : 2013/1/9 23:40:27

URL:

3. Looks like a olive emerger?
4. Cdc and Elk caddis? Some type of hairwing caddis.
7. Quill Gordon Catskill dry fly?

I think if you gave a side profile, many of us could give you a better guess.

Quote:

L_soult wrote:

Now that I have a (slightly) better idea of what I'm looking for I've been buying flies that I've either read about, or were recommended to me by others. Before that, I was just buying flies.

I ended up with these seemingly random beauties:

Some of them look like nymphs with wings. Other's look like dries that may or may not stay on top. Are they for under water? Where can I use them? I could try them out, but I could get bad flies confused with a bad day.

We'll anyway, If anyone could ID these for me I'd really appreciate it.