Walt's worm is always a good choice for Spring Creek.

Nice report and pic! Yeah, the Walt's Worm is a wonderful thing. I have been only using a Woolybugger (in every size and color imaginable) but the new tail less nymph, Walt's Worm, is a real trout producer for me!

The Orvis "sonic seam" (no more stinkin' stitches, thank God) chest waders won't be available for sale until the middle of Feb! And I'm a stubborn guy? I refuse to buy anything else and I won't patch the leak I have now!

Soooo I have become addicted to crappie with my UL spin tackle! I only hope and pray that I'll have the courage to pickup my fly rod again when my new waders arrive?

Please pray for me, Sasquatch, as I also have become hooked on the omega three crappie fillets that are so tasty and healthy for me! In the past, I've eaten a couple trout, and I almost puked! But I'm a C&R guy when I have a fly rod in my hand!
