

Subject: : Fly Fishing Locations

Topic: : Gallatin River

Re: Gallatin River

Author: : Jake41

Date: : 2013/1/11 20:48:41

URL:

The Gallatin is a fine fishery no doubt. The scenery around Big Sky is really pretty and the fishing is very good. Anyone from the East who have fished that area will tell you that there is so much water within 2 hours from Bozeman that it is a tease not to be able to spend a month out there. If your time is limited to under 10 days, then you need to have a good game plan with a good plan "B" to fall back on. There is all types of water to fish also. Spring creeks, tailwaters(Beaverhead) and freestones to keep you busy. I would give a call to a couple fly shops out in Bozeman to help you decide what type of streams you want to hit. PM me if you want some suggestions. You are in for a real treat no matter where you want to fish. Have fun.