Although I fly fish for trout a few times a year. I'm not a fly guy for trout that much. I do fly fish the Delaware river for smalmouth, shad and stripers.

I've seen pics of some monster browns caught in the lower river - below Easton. They've been caught in the dead of winter on spinners and plugs by guys fishing for walleye. I'd like to try it with my fly rod. But I'm not sure what flies and how to present them for these type of fish. I suspect these fish drop back down river during the coldest months ?
