Yea Afish .. going to be hit and miss as I get the feel when I explore alone.

Last year, the 1st time I went out by myself not on a creek called the Neshimany, I had a day planned out to hit pickering creek. Spent most of the day driving around Pheonixville, crossing over the creek numerous times. My inexperience led me to not finding (or knowing where to look) any access points, parking, etc .. same thing later on that day when I finally just went to VC but thought the creek was only the small section in VForge park.

Part of the good ole' learning curve!
