Over the years I've subscribed to FFM, Rod & Reel, Eastern Fly Fishing, and others. For what it's worth I think Fly Fisherman is still the best of all the FF magazines. It was the first coming out way back in the late 1960's. It is still a quality magazine with lots of "how to" articles for newbies and more experienced fly fishers. My pet peeve with FFM, and most every other fly fishing magazine, is their penchant for spot burning. Some of the streams they report on are on the small side and I doubt if they can withstand a lot of pressure from a zillion guys who read the article and decide to descend on that particular stream.

I don't think it's necessary to provide detailed maps of the area showing river access points, naming pools, and hot spots. I thought half the fun of fly fishing was spending some time on the water and locating these places on your own.
