is there a big difference in the two or are they both the same?

The show in Somerset has been running for many years and is considerably larger with more booths and seminars. It is also further away (for us center state guys) and tougher traffic etc. The Lancaster Show is, I think, in it's third or fourth year and growing. I love the Somerset show but it's a tough slog for a day trip and I usually go only once every few years.
