I make a loop, stick it through the eye of the pin, and pull the tag end through the loop.

I had thought about using it as you described. I just hadn't tried it yet.

I'm thinking about eliminating the pin and having an o-ring on each end connected with several passes of thread through the axis of the ear plug.

Just because I know the bobby pin will eventually rust, unless I can find some that are made from a corrosion resistant alloy.
