This is the movie that got me into fly fishing. Not directly, but it got me asking a friend more and more questions until he finally agreed to teach me. He was reluctant, because the only fishing I ever really knew prior involved treble hooks and dead fish, even though I don't eat them. I kept every fish I caught for friends/family. These days, I throw them back so I can catch them more than once. I can honestly say I will never keep a fish again, unless I'm forced to catch food for my dinner table.
