Been up there a bit, a 9' 5 weight will work but a 9' 6 weight is also a must have backup, big water, wading staff is a must as is IMHO a pull cord type of inflatable life vest. It's very dark water you will not see bottom easily.

Also depending on flows it is or can be treacherous, I am a very confident /good wader, this river demands respect. If you are headed up.

Don't forget to bring a smaller rod too for the smaller brooks/creeks. A 7'6" 4 wt will work out good as will an extra spool for a five weight line in case you get some good breeze in the woods.

What time is your trip planned for? Be sure to read the reg book, a lot of waters have different regs. Black flies and skeeters can also make you miserable too. Might want a head net, long sleeves. ect. need any info PM me.
