Paul Newman negotiated with Norman for about a decade trying to get him to agree to allow the book to be made into a movie. It wasn't until right before McClean passed that they came to an agreement on the screenplay. I remember reading that Newman was originally going to play Paul in the movie, but by the time it went into production he was too old to do it. I enjoy reading the book more than the movie, but I won't turn down a chance to watch it if it's on.

It was Robert Redford not Paul Newman. 😊
