First thing to keep in mind when fishing the letort is to keep your expectations in-check. I think it took me 5 times out to have any luck at all. You could write a book on how to fish it (oh wait...). Here's a few tips that I've learned while fishing it.

- 1) move slowly and stay as far back from the stream as you can.
- 2) don't (try to) wade. Seriously, don't do it.
- 3) for every fish that you do see, there are 10 more that you cant see.
- 4) fish the edges of the weeds and undercut banks
- 5) don't be afraid to throw big flies (sculpin, streamers, etc)
- 6) watch your step on the banks. Be ok with the idea of falling in a hole.
- 7) take time to observe before you move into a new stretch.

Theres a lot more to know, but most of it just comes with fishing the stream. Just enjoy the experience, even if you get the skunk.
