

---

Subject: : Conservation

Topic: : NO!!!! Ya think?

Re: NO!!!! Ya think?

Author: : franklin

Date: : 2013/1/30 9:02:29

URL:

Quote:

osprey wrote:

I live in an area in WP that has had access to natural gas since the 40's , before , "long" before i was even born. For a long time the local provider was Peoples Natural Gas , you had no choice of provider back then , like supposedly you do now , anyhow their whole fleet of trucks was operated on natural gas , after all , they owned it all , so it was more or less free. It just strikes me as frightening to think that this proposed conversion is such a profound revelation to these so called geniuses. It's their product , why is it surprising that it would be better all around to power your fleet with it??????

It's a good solution for short haul delivery trucks but not for long haul equipment. Also great for stationary equipment they often have at well sites. Pumps, generators, etc.