Went out on the Lackawanna River today with Dan (Moonbeam) and used this mini-bugger to land my largest wild fish yet! 😊

It really is a great feeling to have a fish take something you tied yourself.

Another round of thanks to all for getting me involved in fly-fishing and for encouraging my on-going learning process.

You can see the fly in the net and no, the fish was not foul-hooked. By the time I set my rod down and walked around to where Dan was, he had taken the hook out and was keeping the fish in the water.

(Dan - thanks again for the net work and photos!)

HA & Fox - It came out just above the "Honey Hole" 😊 where Dan got his the day we all fished the Lackawanna together.

One of these days we need to set up a Lackawanna River Jam.
