Dont mean to hijack your thread. I Just started tying last week. Here's some of my buggers so far. Critique away.

Shorter tails and take your hackle down a size or two or three.

That being said, even if materials are out of proportion on a bugger, they will still catch fish. I'm not the greatest of tiers and my buggers still manage to fool fish.

I was going to make the same comment on Dave's bugger - that even though the proportions weren't perfect, they would still catch fish, but he proved that anyway with his brownie.
