Well I got out to California a day early to fish. Tried a stream that I had hit a couple of times prior but only a few hundred yards each time. Today I hiked in about a mile or so and it was worth the trip. I had surface activity all afternoon but only about 25% hookups. Had a nice 10" bad boy (which for this creek is a monster) but lost him trying to net him. All of these fish are native California rainbows.

Kind of nice to fish in January in 70 degree weather. 🐟

I hope you enjoy the fish photos plus one of another critter I came across.
