

Subject: : Beginner Forum

Topic: : Wading Boots Question

Re: Wading Boots Question

Author: : hack

Date: : 2013/2/5 13:06:17

URL:

I have a good pair (set?) of stocking foot waders for spring that I picked up for less than $100. A search on google today for breathable chest waders netted a bunch from $70-85.

I bought my son a pair of boot foot waders at Cabelas in the clearance section for $25. Felt boots and 3 sizes too big. Chaching!

My Winter waders I grabbed at Walmart. Hodgeman, all neoprene.

Five Bucks. Yeah, I'm bragging a bit. I've already worn them twice, so I got my money back and more!

My boots are my most expensive item and I love them. Korkers - about $125 and worth every penny. Extremely comfortable (I have a size 14 Wide foot, so I can't wear just anything), and interchangeable soles that allow you to go from felt to cleats to rubber on the go. I usually use the rubber as my regular sole, as it holds up really well to walking along the side of a road to get to an access point.

Keep looking around - there are bargains to be found. I am pretty frugal (cheap), but will say it is worthwhile to buy the RIGHT equipment, even if it isn't the "best".