I have started to fish more and more for largemouth with bass bugs in the month of June. Bass bugs are a fun way to fish - seeing a largemouth slam a topwater is a trip. Around where I live the largemouth are still shallow and the weeds aren't bad, so it is prime time from topwaters. Finally. I typically wade around the edges of local park ponds. This allows me to get a number of quick fishing trips in without needing a boat. You would be surprised how many park ponds have decent largemouth fishing.

Of course I love the Delaware for smallies and sunfish in the summer when the trout streams are too warm.
