Huh I have some spots that don't see so much pressure and we use a canoe and go to spots unaccssible by foot, but what streamers or poppers do you use to catch those wipers ? I've been dying to land one on my 6 wt

Clousers are a necessity. They've taken more fish for me than any other fly. Also, just a nice big white wooly bugger #4 or #6 works well.... oh hell, practically any streamer-type fly that may loosely resemble the alewife will work. White is key. White poppers work later in the season also -- I use pencil-style poppers as well as standard bass hard bodies.

A 6-weight huh? That may be fine for most under 20", but if you hook into a 15-pounder, good luck.
