

Subject: : Fly Fishing Locations

Topic: : SE PA Stream Questions

Re: SE PA Stream Questions

Author: : jrmyln

Date: : 2013/2/6 21:01:05

URL:

Quote:

Stagger_Lee wrote:

Quote:

If you want to fish Cook's Creek, make sure you get the landowner's permission. Most of the stream is posted.

Yea that's what it looks like. Last week I worked the Nrth West part of Jersey and went home a different way to finally check it out (Cooks). Last month I was researching and this seems to be the only stream in Bucks that holds natives feel free to correct me if I'm wrong.

For Chaz or any others with info ... from what I saw I'm in agreement with jrmyln and it seems most (if not all) of the stream is posted; are we correct?

There are a few small tribs to Cooks and the Saucon that hold browns as well. A legal sized fish would be considered a trophy but still worth the effort.

If you live close, become a member of the Cooks Creek Watershed Association and attend a few meetings.

There are a lot of landowners that attend and may let you fish if you show that you're willing to put forth the extra effort and help out.