black is the stronger time for hatch where gray is not. hope that helps.

Yep, that's right.

It's also intended to show the variability of the timing. Warm spring weather advances, and cold weather slows down, the timing of the hatches.

It's a general, simplified hatch PA chart. You can find more detailed info on hatches on local streams at the local fly shops.

But also, be prepared to fish the times when trout are not rising for insects, because that is most of the time. See the tying section for info on nymphs and streamers!!
