I have had good success with them fished dead drift under an indicator as a caddis larva. You can use weighted or unweighted.

I had one particular day on a chester county stream where there were a lot of inch worms hanging down from a tree by their threads and the trout were coming up and taking them after they hung there for several seconds. No one else was catching fish and I had a field day using unweighted weenies fished down stream on a fairly long line while dragging them to represent angling inch worms.
