

---

Subject: : Paflyfish General Forum

Topic: : Good vs. Great Hat

Re: Good vs. Great Hat

Author: : boychick

Date: : 2013/2/12 7:27:33

URL:

I've got a 6 or 7 year old Indians baseball cap that is... was navy blue and is now a light gray due to sun fade. The metal buckle used to adjust the size of the hat is now a greenish color from the tarnish it has picked up from being worn in the rain too many times. I wear this hat fishing 12 months a year, in the winter I pull a fleece beanie over it to keep my ears and head warm. We've had a lot of history in a few short years. I have been given several other baseball caps over the years, mainly from my wife who would love this hat to disappear, but they are just not the same. I'm not sure what the attachment is, but I love this hat and will wear it until it can't be worn anymore. I do have a wide brim straw fedora style hat that I wear when I will be on a stream that has little or no shade to avoid being exposed to the sun for too long, but the Indians hat is my fishing hat.