I cast bass flies with my 9' 4 weight, but it is an IMX and they don't make them anymore. A fast rod will allow for casting bass flies using a 4 weight. I know a lot of guys like the big 7 and 8 weights, but that's not for me, not when I'm out all day. To me it matters more what the size of the stream is when deciding what weight is best. For the 'J' I wouldn't use the 4 weight I'd use the 6, ditto the Delaware at least in the bass water, for casting dries to trout on the upper river I use the 4 if it's not windy.
