I love fiberglass fly rods. And if you think they're only for beginners or unserious fly fishers, browse through the Fiberglass Flyrodders Forum some time. Plenty of people who know what they're doing on that board.

I used to post there a lot, under a different screen name than this one. Then they and the CFRF changed servers, and when that happened, for some reason I just got away from posting at those places. I do that some times with websites- just give them a rest for a while. Especially ones where I feel that I'm getting sort of addicted.

But they're both great boards. Lots of great photos and photo essays, too.
