Well if it's already been assessed and surveyed and it's on their list of things to do, then it's duplicating work already done. That's how! It's not going to hurt to contact them, they know about it, they will be glad someone wants to work on it and put some improvements in place to improve habitat, the one thing they will not do is stock it. If there are fish there they will multiply when conditions improve.

And Oh by the way, most TUsers don't want regs on streams, most streams can't handle the extra pressure that regs place on the stream, because of the way regs are used in PA.
