Last time I went to Camp Carmel it was gated at the bike path, and still a good distance to get a drift boat to the river from there. Am I thinking of the right place? Church camp down a bumpy mountain road? The camp sits across from railroad tressel where another creek dumps into the Yough?

Yeah - that's the place. And that stream on the other side of the river is indian creek. No road down along it - as far as I know anyway.

I wasn't thinking about launching a drift boat - and you can't do that at camp carmel

Guess you'll have to try to launch at bruner run.

There is one other possibility you might check out. On the other side of the river - just upstream from bruner run - the PA Delorme shows a road going down to the river from Mill Run. No idea if it's private though
