I picked up a blue sky furred leader this afternoon and headed straight for the stream. It was awesome! Turned over a dry dropper rig with a weighted nymph very nicely. When I came across a pod of risers I was able to quickly tie on a 4' piece of 7x and a sz 20 BWO emerger. The leader really shined with a small dry and despite my doubts, there was no hinge at the leader/tippet connection even with the drastic difference in the size of the materials. Pleasantly surprised!
